Aged smoked and limed timber flooring from the Artisan Collection

ROYAL OAK FLOORS

by Harper & Sandilands

The Aged Smoked and Limed timber, part of the Artisan Collection available at Melbourne-based Royal Oak Floors, is made with American Oak timber.

The top layer of the board is timber bonded to an engineered base to ensure stability. The pre-finished boards have strong tongue and groove joints, on the ends and sides; and have a UV oil coating on a feature-graded oak with knots, which are hand scraped, with an adze, to create the authentic aging look and feel of a worn, restored, antique oak floor.

The prefinished boards are available in a smoked base with a white lime in the low grain, which tends to accentuate the grain while lightening the overall color, which produces a milkier look, compared to the Age Smoked and Limed timber from the Architect Collection.

The pre-finished boards are available in 20 and 15mm thicknesses, in herringbone, at both 189 mm and 260 mm widths, which provide greater stability and translates into fewer floor failures, when compared to some solid flooring installations.

The boards are available in a range of pre-finished board sizes and emit a lower VOC emission, once they are installed. Since the product is pre-finished, it does not require on-site finishing and is likely to measurably reduce installation time.
