Problematic fires require creative solutions

In the real world, skilled firefighters are trained how to put out all types of fires including chemical fires. Snuffing them out proves problematic, as illustrated.

Not all fires are literal.
The following SEGUE
requires a turn signal.

In the digital world, skilled techs resolve IT issues some of which are stubborn. These fires are figurative, not literal ones. However, they have real world consequences. How?

Safety conscious consumers are guarded when web pages they are attempting is preceded with the following warning: Connection is NOT Secure, which is probably one of the reasons why more businesses are securing the connection to their web pages. SSL alone does not guarantee that all of your web pages will include the SECURE CONNECTION status.

Even Google identifies certain web pages - with secure browser connections - as not having secure browser connections. These warnings are misleading and can result in prospective customers choosing to steer clear of these webpages, regardless of whether the warnings are accurate or misleading!
