Gyvtec expands its line

Gyvtec has expanded its line of specialized faster drying liquid screed products suitable for installation in homes, offices, commercial and industrial facilities; an alternative to concrete screed for building contractors and DIY builders during home and office flooring installations.

Rapidly pumped into small or large areas, it really is a cost-effective alternative to concrete and other flooring solutions. The chemical composition is actually quite similar to ready-mix concrete, however with fewer and finer aggregates.

This quick-drying liquid screed, valued for flowability, makes a smooth interior surface with underfloor heating systems. This flush coating for heating pipes is virtually void-free and bubble-free. With significantly lower drying times compared to calcium sulphate liquid screeds, it allows the floors to be used in half the time typically required for the gypsum screeds in residential, commercial, and large-area industrial environments.

Self-levelling compounds, underfloor heating & cooling solutions, moisture testing services, and flowing concrete solutions are a few of the other services the company provides. However that is not all. The company provides additional services such as floor sanding & preparation, and laitance removal: the weak and crumbling layer known to develop during the curing process.

A spokesperson for the company shared the reason for the additional offerings: "the expansion of our liquid screed products and installation capabilities is in response to a growing need for innovative and rapidly scalable floor screed solutions. We are pleased to offer customers a wider range of liquid screed products to meet any budget."
