Minimalist interior design

You're not a big fan of clutter? This project might provide a few ideas for your next interior design project for minimalists. WIDAWSCY Studio Arkitektury in Dębowa Górnicza presents a modern minimalist interior for a two-story family residence with a white background, graphic patterned surfaces, warm wood elements and design accents in various shades of blue.

This particular interior space happens to have wide openings. The openings provide natural light for unobstructed views of surrounding fields and forests.

Wider staircase steps may make it easier on your feet during the ascents and descents. Restrictive narrow steps require a person to use the balls of the feet without the heels; especially people with large feet.

Some surprises are nice. Notice how the kitchen has an abundance of hidden pantry space, well-hidden storage spaces disguised as walls, practical cabinets efficiently nestled under the stairs. The kitchen includes a companion dining room.

The living room is designed with an abundance of space, lighting and furnishings all serving equally important purposes. Some may say it's an austere design, even meager. This is an elegantly sparse space pared down to the bare essentials.

While there are few if any unnecessary decorations, there are patterns on the floors and on the walls. The kitchen floors are patterned with a combination of white iodine and cardboard. The main bedroom blends a black and white striped floor with white brick and walls of wood. Mirrored walls serve as finishes for the private bathroom area.
